U.S. TROOPS WILL REMAIN IN MEXICO CARRANZA IS TOLD

Mr. Wilson Sends Flat Refusal to Demands For Withdrawal

A SHARP REBUKE

Notice Drawn to Discourtesy and Temper In Mexican Note

Reuter's Service.

Washington, June 19.—President Wilson has completed a very lengthy Note addressed to President Carranza.

A Note flatly refusing President Carranza's demand for the withdrawal of the United States troops from Mexico has been handed to the Mexican Ambassador.

The Note rebukes the Carranza Government for the discourteous tone and temper of its last communication.

British Cabinet Split Over Irish Settlement

Several Members May Resign; Also Divided on Kitchener's Successor

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, June 20.—The Times states that negotiations for an Irish settlement, which are making hopeful progress in Ireland, have acutely divided the Cabinet, a section of which is utterly opposed to Mr. Lloyd George's proposals. Resignations of members of the Cabinet are possible.

The Times states that the differences in the Cabinet were first apparent a week ago and came to a head in the last two days. There were informal meetings of the Unionist members of the Cabinet, yesterday and these may be resumed today.

The agitation began with the Unionists from the west and south of Ireland and spread to the Cabinet, where they are headed by Mr. Walter Long, President of the Local Government Board and Vice-Chairman of the Irish Unionist party, on the ground that an immediate settlement of the Irish question is not urgent.

The resignation of the Marquis of Lansdowne (Earl of Kerry) from the Cabinet on this question is intelligible, but it is not clear why any of his colleagues should be affected.

The Daily Mail states that the Earl of Selborne, President of the Board of Agriculture, is opposed to the Irish proposals and that Sir Edward Carson supports Mr. Lloyd George.

Another difficulty in the Cabinet is the appointment of a successor to Lord Kitchener as Secretary of State for War, which matter is in complete suspense.

Lynch's Life Spared On President's Plea

JEREMIAH C. LYNCH.

American Implicated in Irish Uprising Is Sentenced T. Prison for Ten Years

Washington, May 20.—The State Department announced tonight that it had received a cablegram from Ambassador Page in London saying that American Consul Adams at Dublin had informed him that Jeremiah C. Lynch, a naturalized American, had been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for complicity in the Irish revolt. Mr. Page added that he had been so far unable to confirm this news officially in London.

This message shows that Mr. Lynch's life was saved by a margin of less than four hours. He was originally sentenced by court-martial to die at 4 a.m. Friday morning, or 11 p.m. Thursday, New York time. Senator O'Gorman of New York, at the request of Mr. Lynch's friends, laid the matter urgently before the President, who at once, from a theater, directed Counsellor Polk to cable Mr. Page to request the Foreign Office for a suspension of sentence pending an investigation.

It is believed that the sentence of imprisonment was the result of the personal interposition of Prime Minister Asquith. This is inferred from an earlier cablegram received from Mr. Page, which reads:

"According to information from the Foreign Office, Lynch's sentence will not be confirmed until after the case has been submitted to the Prime Minister."

It is supposed that the sentence referred to was the original sentence of death.

The State Department today sent another message relating to the arrest of John J. Kilgallon, of Long Island City, an American youth arrested for bearing arms as a member of a cadet organization in Professor Pearse's school in Dublin. The department asked that Kilgallon be definitely located. He will soon be released.

UNABLE TO REPAIR LOSS, GERMANS GIVE VERDUN A RESPITE

French Also Notice Diminution in Number Of Guns Employed

QUIET ALL ROUND

British, Too, Are Allowed Rest, Though Aviators Increase Activity

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Paris, June 20.—There has been a comparative lull on the Verdun front during the past week. Local infantry actions have occurred on both sides of the Meuse, but no German attack has been successful.

On the right bank, on Saturday, the French gained some trench elements and took some prisoners.

The inaction of the Germans is significant. It is obvious that the Germans are unable to repair their losses by fresh effectives. The number of their guns in the region of Verdun seems to have diminished.

The official communique issued yesterday evening reported: Between the Avre and the Oise, two enemy detachments, after a sharp bombardment, attempted to approach our lines. They were repulsed with bombs.

There was an intermittent artillery duel on the left of the Meuse and a violent bombardment on the right, north of Thiaumont and on the sectors Vaux, Chapilre and Souville.

An enemy air-squadron lavishly bombed a village south of Verdun, where there is a camp for German prisoners. Several of the latter were killed or wounded.

The communique this afternoon reported: Three German night attacks, north-west of Hill 321, were smashed by our machine-gun and curtain-fire. There was an intense bombardment at Vaux Wood and Chattancourt.

The communique in the evening reported: Nothing important on the whole front, except a lively artillery duel south of Vaux Fort.

Flying Men Extra Active

London, June 19.—General Sir Douglas Haig reports: The German infantry was inactive and their artillery quiet, except for heavy shelling of our trenches south-east of Neuville.

There has been a marked increase of the enemy's aerial activity. Yesterday, there were, altogether, 27 air-fights. A hostile machine was felled in our lines and its occupants captured.

Two of our fighting aeroplanes encountered two Fokkers in the vicinity of Lens. One Fokker was driven down damaged and the other shot down, falling 4,000 feet. Three other German machines were driven down, two being damaged.

Hostile reconnaissances crossed our lines in force and were attacked and dispersed by our aeroplanes. Two enemy machines were hit by anti-aircraft fire.

Two British machines were felled in the enemy's lines as the result of combats in the air.

French Attack in Forest Of Thiaumont is Repulsed

(Ostasiatische Lloyd War Service)

Official German report.—Headquarters, June 16.—Western theater.—South of the Franco-Belgian frontier, up to the Somme, lively fighting continues. A French attack with hand-grenades, at Chavonne, east of Villy, was repulsed.

German mine explosions on the ridge of La Fille Mort, in the Argonnes, have been very successful.

In the region of the Meuse, the fire engagements only revived appreciably towards evening. During the night, they became intense at Mort Homme and west of it, as well as in the frontal sector from the forest of Thiaumont to Fort Vaux.

An enemy attack in the forest of Thiaumont, during the night, was repulsed. Other attacks were frustrated yesterday by our fire.

During the fights of the last two days, about 100 French were made prisoners. Several night attacks in the forest of Fremin have been easily repulsed by hand-grenade fighting.

A British biplane fell down at Lens and another one north of Arras, both after aerial fights. Two men of the crew are dead.

One French aeroplane has been shot down in the western Argonnes. German air squadrons attacked the railway stations and military depots at Baccarat and Ravu-li-Etappe.

American Army Concentrating in Mexico ◎ Pitching Tents

The United States Army in Mexico is being concentrated as a result of uncertainty concerning future relations between the American Government and the provisional Government of Mexico. This photograph shows United States infantry pitching tents "somewhere" in Mexico. Despatches relating to the base of the concentration movement are closely deleted by official United States censors.

HYPOCRITES PERMITTED TO BE SCREENED HERE

Official Sanction After Dean Walker and Captain Hilton-Johnson Had Seen Film

Hypocrites, the five-reel movie feature, is to be shown in Shanghai. In a letter to Mr. Mike Newman, owner of the picture, Captain Superintendent of Police McEuen said yesterday that the authorities would allow the exhibition.

There has been much controversy lately between Mr. Newman and police officials. The picture is an allegory through which a young woman impersonating Truth wanders about in the [illegible] inspector saw the picture first. From what he reported the Captain Superintendent couldn't make up his mind whether the films constituted a moral lesson, as claimed by the earnest owner, or an immoral exhibition as has been contended by censors who have refused to pass it.

To set all doubts at rest a morality jury consisting of the Very Rev. Dean A. J. Walker and Captain A. H. Hilton-Johnson, assistant superintendent of police, viewed the picture at a private exhibition at the Apollo, on Tuesday. Their report must have been favorable because Mr. Newman received the following letter from the captain-superintendent:

"I am able to inform you that there is no objection from the police point of view to the exhibition of the film entitled Hypocrites in Shanghai. It is understood of course that the film exhibited will be precisely that shown to a special committee, without any additions whatever."

Hypocrites will be run at the Victoria Theater next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Gen. Chen Blackmailed Shanghai Merchants Is Mr. McEuen's Charge

Threatened Them With Death If Money Not Paid; Still Danger from His Followers

In his report to the Municipal Council for the month, Mr. K. J. McEuen, captain superintendent of police, makes the following comment on the political situation:

"The most important occurrence from a political point of view which occurred in Shanghai during the month was the murder of Chen Chi-[illegible] on May 19 at [illegible] Rue Chapsal in the French Concession. Chen Chi-mei has figured in the background of some of the most important and mysterious cases in recent years in Shanghai. A warrant had been issued for his arrest for some time, and a reward of $100,000 had been offered by the Chinese government for his capture.

"There is little doubt that he had been in the habit of making demands for money amongst the merchants of this community with an intimation that refusal would mean a warrant of death. This source of trouble may be removed, but there is a danger from his followers, who now have no head and no paymaster and may turn to plunder in order to live.

"Numbers of them were criminals of a dangerous type in former years, and unless drastic steps are taken by the authorities of the districts in which they live these persons will undoubtedly resume their old avocations in this vicinity.

"The rebels who were driven away from Wukiang by Government troops and who regathered on the south-western shore of the Tahu Lake—facts which were referred to in the report for April—have now been dealt with and disbanded by the Chekiang authorities, who disbursed three thousand dollars in final payment of their services. Their leader, Wu Cha-loh, is reported to have come to Shanghai, where some of his followers may be expected to arrive also in course of time.

"Most of the members of these bands were natives of provinces which do not adjoin Kiangsu. It is not likely that they will comply with the usual official injunction to return to their native homes, and they will probably make their presence felt in some part of this region when the money which they have is spent and they are in need of more."

U.S. Demands Apology From Austria-Hungary

Reply To Earlier Note On Torpedoing Of Petrolite Regarded As Unsatisfactory

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Washington, June 19.—President Wilson has sent a Note to Austria, demanding an apology and reparation for the torpedoing of the tank-steamer Petrolite in the Mediterranean, as Austria's reply to the previous Note issued by the United States is unsatisfactory.

COUNCIL ASKS C.O.C. TO RECONSIDER RESIGNING

Member Asserts No Likelihood Of Committee's Decision Being Reversed

Members of the Charity Organization Committee have been asked by the Municipal Council to reconsider their resignations. By a letter to the council, this week, the committee resigned in a body, to take effect at the end of this month. There is no likelihood, according to one of the members, that they will continue to serve. This will leave the charity work in Shanghai practically without a definite head.

The committee was appointed by the Council [illegible] ago. At the last ratepayers' meeting the committee asked the council to allow them Tls. 15,000 out of the taxes for charity. A special committee appointed by the council to go into the question reported that relief work should be carried on by the families and consulates of the different nationalities and decided against the appropriation.

The council adopted this report, and since this action left them without money to continue the work, the committee resigned.

Ostasiatische Lloyd

Peking, June 21.—According to the Kuo-chuan-pao, Premier Tuan Chi-jui intends to resign, for personal reasons, after the re-organisation of the new Cabinet.

The resignation of Tuan Tse-kwei, Chiangchun and acting Civil Governor of Fengtien, has been accepted by the President.

Tuan Chi-jui has been instructed by the President to sacrifice on the 23rd inst. before the coffin of the late President. The same order has been given to the Minister of Interior for the day preceding the transfer of the coffin to Honan.

U. S. RAILWAY STRIKE

A despatch to Japanese papers says:

New York, June 15.—The employes of practically all the railways in the United States have gone on strike, demanding an eight-hour day and other concessions. All the railway managers have refused to grant their demands. Arbitration has been suggested as the only feasible method of solving the problem and removing the wholesale embargo on traffic.

GERMANS ATTEMPT TO BREAK THROUGH IN RUSSIANS' REAR

Bring Up Large Forces But Fail to Secure Desired Result

MAY BE CUT OFF

Communications Threatened By Tsar's Rapid Advance on Lemberg

AUSTRIAN REVERSE

Impose Temporary Check, Only to Be Routed When Reserves Arrive

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Petrograd, August 20.—A resume of the situation says that the Germans, assisted by the railway to Kovel from Brest-Litovsk and Lublin, have concentrated considerable forces north of Lutsk and are trying, unsuccessfully, to break through the Russian rear, but their communications are threatened by the advance of the Russians along the Rovno-Kovel railway, which has already crossed the River Stokhod, south of this zone. The Russian advance towards Lemberg is proceeding very rapidly along the railway from Dubno.

The Austro-German forces are making a stubborn stand, west of Tarnopol and north of Buczacz, but, from Buczacz to the Rumanian frontier, the Russians are extending the great breach in the enemy's front to Kolomea.

Advance from Czernowitz

An official communique reports: From Czernowitz, our troops are advancing vigorously towards the River Sereth and they have occupied points six miles south and thirteen miles south-west of Czernowitz. Besides 3,000 prisoners, we captured 12 guns, two of heavy caliber, many machine-guns and over a thousand wagons laden with provisions and forage.

Near Lokacgy (? Lokoche), thirty miles west of Lutsk, the Austrians, in massed formation, drove in our fighting front and captured three guns. Re-inforcements arrived, routed the enemy, re-captured one gun and made 300 prisoners.

The communique describes other fierce and successful engagements westward, south-west and south of Lutsk, in which the Russians yesterday captured 1,800 prisoners.

British Are Helping

A British unit which recently arrived at Archangel was feted at Moscow on the 5th. There were great popular demonstrations on the arrival of a British armored-car detachment, which marched through the streets, with bands playing and amid cheering crowds, who showered flowers on the detachment. It left for the front on the 7th.

London, June 20.—General Brussiloff, interviewed by a correspondent of the Times, said that the main element of the Russian success was the absolute co-ordination of all the armies, which attacked simultaneously. It was impossible for the enemy to shift troops from one quarter to another.

Kovel Is Vital Point

The most important fighting was on the Rovno sector, where the Russian advances were greatest. If the Russians took Kovel, the whole of the enemy's eastern front would probably be obliged to fall back.

The Germans, realising the importance of the position, were rushing up troops to the Rovno sector from the west and north.

General Brussiloff explained that the huge captures of prisoners were due to the impossibility of escaping quickly from the trenches when taken in the rear and flank. Moreover, the Russians now have sufficient ammunition to employ curtain-fire to prevent the enemy retiring.

U.S. TROOPS WILL REMAIN IN MEXICO CARRANZA IS TOLD

Mr. Wilson Sends Flat Refusal to Demands For Withdrawal

A SHARP REBUKE

Notice Drawn to Discourtesy and Temper In Mexican Note

Reuter's Service.

Washington, June 19.—President Wilson has completed a very lengthy Note addressed to President Carranza.

A Note flatly refusing President Carranza's demand for the withdrawal of the United States troops from Mexico has been handed to the Mexican Ambassador.

The Note rebukes the Carranza Government for the discourteous tone and temper of its last communication.

British Cabinet Split Over Irish Settlement

Several Members May Resign; Also Divided on Kitchener's Successor

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, June 20.—The Times states that negotiations for an Irish settlement, which are making hopeful progress in Ireland, have acutely divided the Cabinet, a section of which is utterly opposed to Mr. Lloyd George's proposals. Resignations of members of the Cabinet are possible.

The Times states that the differences in the Cabinet were first apparent a week ago and came to a head in the last two days. There were informal meetings of the Unionist members of the Cabinet, yesterday and these may be resumed today.

The agitation began with the Unionists from the west and south of Ireland and spread to the Cabinet, where they are headed by Mr. Walter Long, President of the Local Government Board and Vice-Chairman of the Irish Unionist party, on the ground that an immediate settlement of the Irish question is not urgent.

The resignation of the Marquis of Lansdowne (Earl of Kerry) from the Cabinet on this question is intelligible, but it is not clear why any of his colleagues should be affected.

The Daily Mail states that the Earl of Selborne, President of the Board of Agriculture, is opposed to the Irish proposals and that Sir Edward Carson supports Mr. Lloyd George.

Another difficulty in the Cabinet is the appointment of a successor to Lord Kitchener as Secretary of State for War, which matter is in complete suspense.

Lynch's Life Spared On President's Plea

JEREMIAH C. LYNCH, Co. F. 7th C.I.V.

American Implicated in Irish Uprising Is Sentenced To Prison for Ten Years

Washington, May 20.—The State Department announced tonight that it had received a cablegram from Ambassador Page in London saying that American Consul Adams at Dublin had informed him that Jeremiah C. Lynch, a naturalized American, had been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for complicity in the Irish revolt. Mr. Page added that he had been so far unable to confirm this news officially in London.

This message shows that Mr. Lynch's life was saved by a margin of less than four hours. He was originally sentenced by court-martial to die at 4 a.m. Friday morning, or 11 p.m. Thursday, New York time. Senator O'Gorman of New York, at the request of Mr. Lynch's friends, laid the matter urgently before the President, who at once, from a theater, directed Counsellor Polk to cable Mr. Page to request the Foreign Office for a suspension of sentence pending an investigation.

It is believed that the sentence of imprisonment was the result of the personal interposition of Prime Minister Asquith. This is inferred from an earlier cablegram received from Mr. Page, which reads:

"According to information from the Foreign Office, Lynch's sentence will not be confirmed until after the case has been submitted to the Prime Minister."

It is supposed that the sentence referred to was the original sentence of death.

The State Department today sent another message relating to the arrest of John J. Kilgallon, of Long Island City, an American youth arrested for bearing arms as a member of a cadet organization in Professor Pearse's school in Dublin. The department asked that Kilgallon be definitely located. He will soon be released.

UNABLE TO REPAIR LOSS, GERMANS GIVE VERDUN A RESPITE

French Also Notice Diminution in Number Of Guns Employed

QUIET ALL ROUND

British, Too, Are Allowed Rest, Though Aviators Increase Activity

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Paris, June 20.—There has been a comparative lull on the Verdun front during the past week. Local infantry actions have occurred on both sides of the Meuse, but no German attack has been successful.

On the right bank, on Saturday, the French gained some trench elements and took some prisoners.

The inaction of the Germans is significant. It is obvious that the Germans are unable to repair their losses by fresh effectives. The number of their guns in the region of Verdun seems to have diminished.

The official communique issued yesterday evening reported: Between the Avre and the Oise, two enemy detachments, after a sharp bombardment, attempted to approach our lines. They were repulsed with bombs.

There was an intermittent artillery duel on the left of the Meuse and a violent bombardment on the right, north of Thiaumont and on the sectors Vaux, Chapilre and Souville.

An enemy air-squadron lavishly bombed a village south of Verdun, where there is a camp for German prisoners. Several of the latter were killed or wounded.

The communique this afternoon reported: Three German night attacks, north-west of Hill 321, were smashed by our machine-gun and curtain-fire. There was an intense bombardment at Vaux Wood and Chattancourt.

The communique in the evening reported: Nothing important on the whole front, except a lively artillery duel south of Vaux Fort.

Flying Men Extra Active

London, June 19.—General Sir Douglas Haig reports: The German infantry was inactive and their artillery quiet, except for heavy shelling of our trenches south-east of Neuville.

There has been a marked increase of the enemy's aerial activity. Yesterday, there were, altogether, 27 air-fights. A hostile machine was felled in our lines and its occupants captured.

Two of our fighting aeroplanes encountered two Fokkers in the vicinity of Lens. One Fokker was driven down damaged and the other shot down, falling 4,000 feet. Three other German machines were driven down, two being damaged.

Hostile reconnaissances crossed our lines in force and were attacked and dispersed by our aeroplanes. Two enemy machines were hit by anti-aircraft fire.

Two British machines were felled in the enemy's lines as the result of combats in the air.

French Attack in Forest Of Thiaumont is Repulsed

(Ostasiatische Lloyd War Service)

Official German report.—Headquarters, June 16.—Western theater.—South of the Franco-Belgian frontier, up to the Somme, lively fighting continues. A French attack with hand-grenades, at Chavonne, east of Villy, was repulsed.

German mine explosions on the ridge of La Fille Mort, in the Argonnes, have been very successful.

In the region of the Meuse, the fire engagements only revived appreciably towards evening. During the night, they became intense at Mort Homme and west of it, as well as in the frontal sector from the forest of Thiaumont to Fort Vaux.

An enemy attack in the forest of Thiaumont, during the night, was repulsed. Other attacks were frustrated yesterday by our fire.

During the fights of the last two days, about 100 French were made prisoners. Several night attacks in the forest of Fremin have been easily repulsed by hand-grenade fighting.

A British biplane fell down at Lens and another one north of Arras, both after aerial fights. Two men of the crew are dead.

One French aeroplane has been shot down in the western Argonnes. German air squadrons attacked the railway stations and military depots at Baccarat and Ravu-li-Etappe.

HYPOCRITES PERMITTED TO BE SCREENED HERE

Hypocrites, the five-reel movie feature, is to be shown in Shanghai. In a letter to Mr. Mike Newman, owner of the picture, Captain Superintendent of Police McEuen said yesterday that the authorities would allow the exhibition.

There has been much controversy lately between Mr. Newman and police officials. The picture is an allegory through which a young woman impersonating Truth wanders about in the Altogether. Inspector saw the picture first. From what he reported the Captain Superintendent couldn't make up his mind whether the films constituted a moral lesson, as claimed by the earnest owner, or an immoral exhibition as has been contended by censors who have refused to pass it.

To set all doubts at rest a morality jury consisting of the Very Rev. Dean A. J. Walker and Captain A. H. Hilton-Johnson, assistant superintendent of police, viewed the picture at a private exhibition at the Apollo, on Tuesday. Their report must have been favorable because Mr. Newman received the following letter from the captain-superintendent:

"I am able to inform you that there is no objection from the police point of view to the exhibition of the film entitled Hypocrites in Shanghai. It is understood of course that the film exhibited will be precisely that shown to a special committee, without any additions whatever."

Hypocrites will be run at the Victoria Theater next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Gen. Chen Blackmailed Shanghai Merchants Is Mr. McEuen's Charge

Threatened Them With Death If Money Not Paid; Still Danger from His Followers

In his report to the Municipal Council for the month, Mr. K. J. McEuen, captain superintendent of police, makes the following comment on the political situation:

"The most important occurrence from a political point of view which occurred in Shanghai during the month was the murder of Chen Chi-[illegible] about 5 [illegible] on May 19 at [illegible] Rue Chapsal in the French Concession. Chen Chi-mei has figured in the background of some of the most important and mysterious cases in recent years in Shanghai. A warrant had been issued for his arrest for some time, and a reward of $100,000 had been offered by the Chinese government for his capture.

"There is little doubt that he had been in the habit of making demands for money amongst the merchants of this community with an intimation that refusal would mean a warrant of death. This source of trouble may be removed, but there is a danger from his followers, who now have no head and no paymaster and may turn to plunder in order to live.

"Numbers of them were criminals of a dangerous type in former years, and unless drastic steps are taken by the authorities of the districts in which they live these persons will undoubtedly resume their old avocations in this vicinity.

"The rebels who were driven away from Wukiang by Government troops and who regathered on the south-western shore of the Tahu Lake—facts which were referred to in the report for April—have now been dealt with and disbanded by the Chekiang authorities, who disbursed three thousand dollars in final payment of their services. Their leader, Wu Cha-loh, is reported to have come to Shanghai, where some of his followers may be expected to arrive also in course of time.

"Most of the members of these bands were natives of provinces which do not adjoin Kiangsu. It is not likely that they will comply with the usual official injunction to return to their native homes, and they will probably make their presence felt in some part of this region when the money which they have is spent and they are in need of more."

U.S. Demands Apology From Austria-Hungary

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Washington, June 19.—President Wilson has sent a Note to Austria, demanding an apology and reparation for the torpedoing of the tank-steamer Petrolite in the Mediterranean, as Austria's reply to the previous Note issued by the United States is unsatisfactory.

COUNCIL ASKS C.O.C. TO RECONSIDER RESIGNING

Member Asserts No Likelihood Of Committee's Decision Being Reversed

Members of the Charity Organization Committee have been asked by the Municipal Council to reconsider their resignations. By a letter to the council, this week, the committee resigned in a body, to take effect at the end of this month. There is no likelihood, according to one of the members, that they will continue to serve. This will leave the charity work in Shanghai practically without a definite head.

The committee was appointed by the council [illegible] ago. At the last ratepayers' meeting the committee asked the council to allow them Tls. 15,000 out of the taxes for charity. A special committee appointed by the council to go into the question reported that relief work should be carried on by the families and consulates of the different nationalities and decided against the appropriation.

The council adopted this report, and since this action left them without money to continue the work, the committee resigned.

Peking, June 21.—According to the Kuo-chuan-pao, Premier Tuan Chi-jui intends to resign, for personal reasons, after the re-organisation of the new Cabinet.

The resignation of Tuan Tse-kwei, Chiangchun and acting Civil Governor of Fengtien, has been accepted by the President.

Tuan Chi-jui has been instructed by the President to sacrifice on the 23rd inst. before the coffin of the late President. The same order has been given to the Minister of Interior for the day preceding the transfer of the coffin to Honan.

U. S. RAILWAY STRIKE

A despatch to Japanese papers says:

New York, June 15.—The employes of practically all the railways in the United States have gone on strike, demanding an eight-hour day and other concessions. All the railway managers have refused to grant their demands. Arbitration has been suggested as the only feasible method of solving the problem and removing the wholesale embargo on traffic.

GERMANS ATTEMPT TO BREAK THROUGH IN RUSSIANS' REAR

Bring Up Large Forces But Fail to Secure Desired Result

MAY BE CUT OFF

Communications Threatened By Tsar's Rapid Advance on Lemberg

AUSTRIAN REVERSE

Impose Temporary Check, Only to Be Routed When Reserves Arrive

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Petrograd, August 20.—A resume of the situation says that the Germans, assisted by the railway to Kovel from Brest-Litovsk and Lublin, have concentrated considerable forces north of Lutsk and are trying, unsuccessfully, to break through the Russian rear, but their communications are threatened by the advance of the Russians along the Rovno-Kovel railway, which has already crossed the River Stokhod, south of this zone. The Russian advance towards Lemberg is proceeding very rapidly along the railway from Dubno.

The Austro-German forces are making a stubborn stand, west of Tarnopol and north of Buczncz, but, from Buczacz to the Rumanian frontier, the Russians are extending the great breach in the enemy's front to Kolomea.

Advance from Czernowitz

An official communique reports: From Czernowitz, our troops are advancing vigorously towards the River Sereth and they have occupied points six miles south and thirteen miles south-west of Czernowitz. Besides 3,000 prisoners, we captured 12 guns, two of heavy caliber, many machine-guns and over a thousand wagons laden with provisions and forage.

Near Lokacgy (? Lokoche), thirty miles west of Lutsk, the Austrians, in massed formation, drove in our fighting front and captured three guns. Re-inforcements arrived, routed the enemy, re-captured one gun and made 300 prisoners.

The communique describes other fierce and successful engagements westward, south-west and south of Lutsk, in which the Russians yesterday captured 1,800 prisoners.

British Are Helping

A British unit which recently arrived at Archangel was feted at Moscow on the 5th. There were great popular demonstrations on the arrival of a British armored-car detachment, which marched through the streets, with bands playing and amid cheering crowds, who showered flowers on the detachment. It left for the front on the 7th.

London, June 20.—General Brussiloff, interviewed by a correspondent of the Times, said that the main element of the Russian success was the absolute co-ordination of all the armies, which attacked simultaneously. It was impossible for the enemy to shift troops from one quarter to another.

Kovel Is Vital Point

The most important fighting was on the Rovno sector, where the Russian advances were greatest. If the Russians took Kovel, the whole of the enemy's eastern front would probably be obliged to fall back.

The Germans, realising the importance of the position, were rushing up troops to the Rovno sector from the west and north.

General Brussiloff explained that the huge captures of prisoners were due to the impossibility of escaping quickly from the trenches when taken in the rear and flank. Moreover, the Russians now have sufficient ammunition to employ curtain-fire to prevent the enemy retiring.

Nothing Important In Russian Theater Is Berlin's Report

Germans Repulse Attacks; Are In Favorable Position For Battle of Lutsk

(Ostasiatische Lloyd War Service)

Official German telegram.—Eastern theater.—Nothing of importance has occurred at the northern part of the front. Numerous bombs have been thrown on the rails between Lyadevitchi and Ensinie, where great military transports were moving.

The Russian attacks have been repulsed, partly by successful counter-attacks of the army group under General von Linsingen on the Styr, west of Kolki, on the Nachod, as well as in the region of the railway Kovel-Rovno.

North-west of Lutsk, the Germans are engaged in a fight which stands favorably for them. The amount of booty and prisoners is increasing. South-west of Lutsk, the Russians attacked in the direction of Myogrochov.

The situation of the army of General Count von Bothmer is unchanged.

Berlin, June 20.—The Deutscher Ueberseedienst reports: Colonel General von Moltke, the chief of the assistant General Staff, fell dead after a speech he made at the memorial service which the German Asiatic Society had arranged in the parliament building for their late president, Field Marshal von der Goltz.

Chinese Press Reports

The Sin Wan Pao:—Two elder sons of the late President Yuan have petitioned the President requesting the immediate punishment of the promoters of the monarchy.

The Government has proposed the following terms to the important men of the South on the reorganisation of the Cabinet:

1. To select the able men from all parties to form a strong Cabinet.
2. The conservative party and monarchists to be excluded.
3. The old corruptions of the Manchu Dynasty shall be absolutely prohibited.
4. A special mandate shall be issued vesting definite responsibility and power in the Cabinet.

The Eastern Times: The government has received 109 telegrams asking for the punishment of the promoters of the monarchy.

The government has called General Feng Kuo-chang to Peking.

Kiangsu and Chihli and six other provinces have requested the President to issue a mandate to revive the constitution of the 1st Year of Minkuo, and convene the National Assembly at once.

MRS. GOOLD, MISSIONARY, MISSING FROM SHANGHAI

Description Issued; Police Request Aid in Tracing The Lady

The police had not received word last night concerning Mrs. Goold, a missionary woman who has been missing since Monday. Considerable uneasiness is felt by her friends. Mrs. Goold was last seen at about 9.30 on Monday night, in the Hongkew district.

The missing woman is about 50 years old. She is of medium height, thin, grey eyes, grey hair and sunken cheeks. When last seen, she was wearing a black alpaca jacket and skirt.

Anyone seeing a person answering the description is requested to notify the Central Police Station.

French Appreciation Of Japan's Assistance

'Mighty and Generous Aid,' Says M. Girard, ex-Ambassador At Tokio

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Paris, June 20.—M. Girard, the French ex-Ambassador to Japan, writes today in Le Petit Journal that the "Effort of France and her Allies Committee," in paying a tribute to the European Great Powers, was anxious to praise likewise the mighty and generous aid which Japan has brought from the beginning in the gigantic struggle pursued against the Germanic Empire and its accomplices.

The Kiaochou campaign and Japan's co-operation with Great Britain, France and Australia in policing the Indian and Pacific Oceans were a great help, as well as the revictualling of the enormous Russian armies. To these must be added the continual services rendered by Japan in associating herself with all decisive acts of the Allies, such as the Declaration of London and the Paris economic conference.

Baron Sakatani, the Japanese delegate to the Paris economic conference, declared yesterday to a reporter of Le Temps that the understanding was complete between the Allies for the measures to be taken in view of the economic struggle. The Japanese delegates came to Paris with the desire of entering into an agreement with a view to studying thoroughly the commercial relations between France and Japan.

GIRL TELLS OF VISIT TO BELGIANS' QUEEN

Miss Carita Spencer Sends A Description of Monarch's Abode Near War Zone

CANNON BOOM IN DISTANCE

Gracious Welcome Is Received By Worker for Wounded Of Allies

New York, May 16.—Miss Carita Spencer, National Chairman of the Surgical Dressings Committee of the National Civic Federation, has sent to her father, Alexander H. Spencer of 200 West Fifty-seventh Street, a graphic letter about a visit to the Queen of the Belgians. The letter, which is decorated with a paster, "Opened by Censor 3158," reads:

April 28, La Panne, Belgium.

Yesterday morning at 9 o'clock I received word from the Belgian Legation in Paris that the Queen would receive me today at 2.30 here. I don't yet know just how and why, but I've had many lines open and probably its the culmination of all. At any rate, I hustled to authorities, American and French, to get the necessary permits, packed a bag and actually caught a 12.30 train. Nine hours to Calais in war time and no food. A kindly French officer shared wine and biscuits with me. From Boulogne and its neighborhood mile after mile of English camp, the train running through them—oh, so interesting, and such picturesque sand dunes—I reached Calais the only soul in the car, and dust, you could cut it with a knife. News had come that a "Zep" was around.

Lugging my own bag, (the small one) I eventually stumbled into the Grand Hotel, lit by candles only—no dinner, but tea and bread in my room. Beautiful warm weather. This morning around Calais soldiers everywhere of the three nationalities. At 12.30 the Queen's motor came and I was off for two hours over humpy roads through the picturesque landscape, under a hot sun. Arrived here, and as long as I live I'll never forget the scene. Warm sunshine—a sandy beach over one-eighty mile wide, small breakers, a line of brightly-colored seaside honses and villas—little sloops on the sea and warships in the distance—cavalry manoeuvering on the sands, the dunes at either end and behind—nurses and convalescent soldiers on the walk and in the sands—the distant booming of big guns, probably naval, and the nearer sounds of practice firing.

In a simple villa I met the Queen, with whom I talked, as I naturally would, for an hour and a quarter—a pretty, charming, simple, direct woman—in fact, all I had looked forward to—dressed in outing skirt, yellow silk sweater and white outing hat. Well, I am to be shown everything interesting in Belgium that is within the law of possible permits. I am the house guest of the famous Dr. de Page, have met charming ladies and a goodly number of the principal officers. The hospital is a wonder, and I'll describe it in my diary. But the panorama is beyond description—and, as sunset descended an English aeroplane on the beach. In a few minutes it was surrounded by a couple of hundred men in khaki—then off it went. Then the beach guard changed—then over the front only a few miles away rose a Belgian plane with German shrapnel bursting after it. The wounded come in in the ambulances. It took a thirty-second peep at a leg operation in the doing. At dinner—a very frugal but good one—they talk of everything except war.

I must sleep now, for I'm half dead and tomorrow brings much to do. I stay here until Monday seeing things in the neighborhood, then go to Poperinghe and then to Roos Bruges (?) Mrs. Borden Turner's hospital—reaching Paris in about a week. They had a peach of a bombardment here the other day, but, of course, it will be tolerably quiet while I'm around—sure to be safe, as I'm as playing in that kind of luck—very good luck I call it.

Don't think me selfish in not writing more at length than I do—I am on the go from early morning till late at night, and every day brings six or odd notes to write, as I'm meeting so many new people all the time. In Paris I generally leave the hotel at 10 and do not return until after dinner—going from one thing to another. I'll surely be bald from wearing my hat. It was the same in London except that I stopped in to dress for dinner there.

CARITA.

The Surgical Dressings Committee, of which Mary Hatch Willard is chairman, has shipped to the war zone more than 5,000,000 articles for use by surgeons. The materials—cotton, cloth and other bandage appurtenances—have been gifts from individuals, mostly merchants. No cash has been solicited by the committee. Mrs. Willard and Miss Spencer have organized in their work 800 subsidiary groups of women throughout the country, and one of the beneficial results of the movement, it is expected, will be the training of 10,000 or more women in activities that will be of permanent value to this country in case it ever needs such aid in a war of its own.

Miss Spencer left New York on March 4. She spent four weeks in England and was much entertained. One of her experiences was a trip in a military aeroplane, and she visited camps, hospitals and training schools. Since then she has been in Paris, Bordeaux, Havre and Calais, and she is now about to visit Italy before returning home in June.

BERNSTORFF WANTS TO GO

Reported Probable Replacement By Prince Buelow

New York, May 26.—The Evening Sun learns that Count Bernstorff has notified the Kaiser of his conviction that another Ambassador could now accomplish more than he could in the promotion of German interests in the United States. Count Bernstorff thinks that the days of his "usefulness" in this country are at an end.

The Sun believes that the reports that Prince Buelow has been selected to succeed the count are correct.

MEMORIAL DAY SEES PASSING OF NOTED 'REB'

Col. John S. Mosby, Confederate Raider, Closes Picturesque Life

Washington, D. C., May 30.—Col. John Singleton Mosby, the famous Confederate raider during the Civil War, died today.

Col. Mosby dared death over 50 years ago when at the head of a band of a few hundred Confederate raiders he rode up and down the Shenandoah valley, capturing outposts, destroying supply trains and cutting off means of communication. It has been estimated that he often neutralized the force of over 15,000 Federals in the valley.

Born in Powhattan county, Virginia, December 6, 1833, and graduated from the University of Virginia in 1852, he was practising law in Bristol, Va., when the war broke out and he began his career in the Confederate army. He proved his daring with such effect that he became a scout for Gen. J. E. B. Stuart and led the celebrated raid around McClellan's army on the Chickahominy. In Richmond a year later he recruited an dependent cavalry troop which became famous as Mosby's Partisan Rangers. They became night riders and the terror of the Federal troops.

Mosby's most brillian exploit was the capture of Gen. Stoughton. On a March night in 1863 he, with 30 followers, rode through the Federal army to Fairfax court house, only 15 miles from Washington, where Gen. Stoughton was asleep. Although surrounded by an army said to have been 17,000 strong, the rangers calmly kidnapped the general, his staff and many sentries and turned them over to the Confederate authorities at Culpeper without having lost a man.

Gen. Grant once later saved Mosby from hanging, and two foes of the battlefield became stanch friends. Mosby stumped the state of Virginia for Grant during his presidential campaign and was rewarded with an appointment as consul at Hongkong, a post which he held for seven years.

He next became special land agent for the government in Colorado, and from 1904 to 1910 he was an attorney in the department of justice. The closing years of his life were spent in lecturing and authorship. His home lay across the Potomac, at Warrenton, Va., but he was often seen in Washington, his white hair and strong Roman features, making him a picturesque figure on the streets or lecture platform. He had written "Mosby's War Reminiscences," "The Dawn of the Real South," and "Stuart's Cavalry Campaign." He was also known as a Greek scholar.

"My military creed," he once declared, "is this: It is better to make a good run than a bad stand."

TYROL POSITION BETTER

Great Manœuvre Battle Thought Imminent

Milan, May 26.—The situation in the Tyrol is improving. A great manœuvre battle is believed to be imminent, and is expected here with calm and confidence.

Since Tuesday the Austrians have made practically no progress. Some of their units have had to be entirely re-formed on account of heavy losses. A Swiss newspaper calculates that in the first phase of the offensive the Austrians had 70,000 men put out of action, and this is not considered exaggerated.

SOME BOOKS OF POETRY

Lyrics of a Swedish Singer.—Battle Verse of Wilfrid Gibson

From the volume "Poems by Gustaf Froding" (Macmillans), translations by Charles Wharton Stone from the original Swedish, the thirsty reader may drink liquid lines to his heart's content. For here are the works of one content to be just a poet, and bothered by no confusions of imagistic verse, or verbal cubisms. This singer has vision and fancy and humor and sentiment and, when he needs it, power. He does not demand odd forms and ridiculous phraseologies to advertise his wares. Read him in pastoral:

Heard you ne'er cowbells, heard you ne'er singing
Stray down the meadow at evening fall?
Cows low their answer and quicken the swinging
Stride of their pace at the milk-maid's call.
And hear him again when
We'll have a harrow and we'll have a plough,
And we'll have a horse that can pull them, I vow.
"Yes, and a garden for cabbages, too."

Moreover, these married lovers propose to have a pig, chickens, ducks, down pillows, glasses and china dishes——

But, Maya, these things will be hard to procure,
You are so lazy and I am so poor.
The parish feeds me and roots nourish you,
Well, Erik!
Well, Maya!
What shall we do?

What with these and various love poems, and "The Wives of Hunter Malin" and "Prince Aladdin of the Lamp" and his miscellaneous lyrics, this writer in the Swedish offers a blessed relief from the ultra-modern faddists in free verse and sounding rot. One hates to turn from his flowing lines to the "Chicago Songs" of Carl Sandburg (Henry Holt and Co.), in which the "Hog Butcher for the World," subject of just derision on its printing in periodical pages, reappears with reinforcements. One need not be an orthodox religionist to be repelled by Sandburg's reproof to "A Contemporary Bunkshooter," beginning.

You come along—tearing your shirt
—yelling about Jesus.
Where do you get that stuff?
What do you know about Jesus,

Yet it is, perhaps, a waste of effort to hold up to extended denunciation the vulgarisms profaning the name of poetry which must soon pass of their own depressing weight.

Wilfrid Wilson Gibson's "Battle and Other Poems" (Macmillans) is divided into three parts, "Battle," "Friends" and "Stonefolds." Under the first and second heads are gathered numerous brief bits of verse, under the third division are seven little plays in metered lines. Naturally, it is the first division that attracts the attention of the moment, for here are the rhymes inspired by the soldier's life while all Europe is either in action or in dread.

Gravely in "Before Action," Mr. Gibson sings:

I sit beside the braziers glow
And, drowsing in the heat,
I dream of daffodils that blow
And lambs that frisk and bleat—

Black lambs that frolic in the snow
Among the daffodils,
In a far orchard that I know
Beneath the Malvern hills.

Next year the daffodils will blow
And lambs will frisk and bleat;
But I'll not feel the brazier's glow,
Nor any cold nor heat.

But again, with a grimness of humor, and remembering an omission at home:

I quite forgot to put the spigot in.
It's just come over me. . . .
And it is queer
To think he'll not care if we lose or win
And yet be jumping mad about that beer.

I left it running full. He must have said
A thing or two. I'd give my stripes to hear
What he will say if I'm reported dead
Before he gets me told about that beer!

Mr. Gibson's dramatic poems were written ten years ago. His "Friends" numbers include a tribute to Rupert Brooke, fellow poet, dead on the field.

'THE ROAD TO MECCA'

Florence Irwin's Story of Ellie Brewster and a Social Climb

Florence Irwin's "The Road to Mecca" (Putnams) is the story of the unsentimental journey of Ellie Brewster—a journey that begins in Allenbury and ends at the high peak of the social world of New York, Newport and attendant capitals.

Ellie has never fitted into Allenbury nor into the homely family of which she is nominally a member. She has made no friends in the village. Her girlhood dreams have been all of wealth and its glittering perquisites of place and pleasure. Not her heart, but her ambition has furnished her motive impulses. She marries R. Wesley Prentiss, a young newcomer to Allenbury, because she sees in him push and possibilities. And she is not wrong in her judgment. Prentiss's business shrewdness and her own social cleverness make an irresistible combination. The climb begins promptly and never ceases till the top is reached.

It is significant of Ellie Brewster's attention to details that, early in the climbing, she becomes Nora, corrupted from Elinor, while R. Wesley is converted into Robert W., shortened for home use into Bob.

Through accidential circumstance hinging upon the return of a prodigal son of Allenbury, Nora Prentiss's first steps on her journey lead her into the set of too many cocktails, too much bridge and not many scruples. This is dangerous, but educational. Part of Nora's cleverness, too, develops into knowing just when to be off with the old set and on with the new. Her moment of most exquisite triumph is that when, having won her place on the Van Twiner list, she drops the Harry Littles from her own.

Miss Irwin's account of Nora's adventures on her chosen road is long and sufficiently plausible. Possibly her book deals rather with the society of popular conception than with that of fact, and its atmosphere is almost too constantly that of the deadly triangle and the playing-with-fire flirtation. Its people, however, are very thoroughly alive, and its purpose of revealing the vanity of Ellie Brewster's arrival and of showing where personal loss overbalances social gain is better served through glimpsing a segment than through visualizing the full round of a charmed circle.

THE DUEL

The Duel. By A. Kuprin. The Macmillan Company. $1.50 (gold) net.

Life in a small garrison town, a God forsaken place, as it is called by those unfortunate enough to be quartered there, is minutely described in this very sombre novel, translated from the Russian. "The Duel" of which it tells is both external and internal—fought "in the wood called Oakwood" and in the soul of Sub-Lieutenant Romashov. He is the principal character—he can scarcely be termed the hero—of the story; a boy little over 21, weak, ineffective, a sentimentalist whose sentiment verges on mawkishness, but constantly thinking of himself in the third person as the central figure in some romantic or thrilling episode, and awakening from his daydream to encounter facts diametrically opposed to his rose-colored imaginings. Yet with all his faults and blunderings, he is one of the few able to see the real futility and brutishness of the existence of which he is a part, able to dream of something better, and even to plan ways of escape, but too pitiably weak not to yield easily to the forces about him.

And those forces, with a single exception ,all make for evil. His companions, the other officers of the regiment, are thus described by Nasanski, the "notorious drunkard," who is also, one suspects, the author's mouth-piece.

"Mere fag-ends, despised pariahs. . . . Poor devils burdened with large families, veritable beggars ready for every villainy and cruelty. . . . Cards, drinking bouts, disgusting swagger about the favors women have bestowed upon them—all this I might be able to pass over in silence. The most repulsive thing, however, is the cruel eagerness . . . to gain a name as martinets and brutes to their men, as, for instance, Osadchi and Company, who with impunity knock out the teeth and eyes of their young recruits."

The dreary society of these delightful persons, all of whom are bored with each other, with themselves, and with their daily routine to such an extent that they are absolutely desperate, Romashov for a short time manages to endow with fancied attractions; he slips into an unteresting liaison with a vulgar married woman, and joins more or less feebly in the orgies with which those around him try to relieve the tedium of their existence. Then he falls really in love with a certain Alexandra Petrovna, whose one great desire it is to get away from "this wretched little provincial hole," and with that end in view has done everything possible to push her stupid husband through the examinations for the Staff. But there comes a time when either Romashov or her ambition must be sacrificed, and without a moment's compunction she makes the young man the victim.

The character of the feeble-will sentimentalist Romashov is admirably drawn, and the pictures of garrison life, repellent as they are, have verisimilitude; but the general effect of the book is that of a gray, hopeless dreariness, a general slackness of mental and moral fibre, a sort of universal dryrot, which even the long speeches of Nasanski, who declares that the day will come when "no more lamblike love for one's neighbor, but the divine love to one's own ego will be preached among men" and the world thereby redeemed, can do much to nullify.

Her Wedding Furnishes the Climax to Anne Warner's Last Book

An amazing marriage, in the final chapter of "Susan Clegg and Her Love Affairs" (Little, Brown and Co.) puts a period to the career in print of the fictional lady added by the late Anne Warner to the list of humorous American heroines.

This book is the last of Miss Warner's writings. Like its predecessors dealing with Susan and her ways, it is rich in whimsical speech, and its more thrilling incidents include a bit of burglary.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups solu for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper of genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

BRITAIN FACES FAMINE PERIL, SAYS ACLAND

'If More Men Are Swept Off Farms More Ships Needed To Carry Food'

London, May 22.—A breakdown in home supplies is avoidable only if the labor situation does not grow worse, declared Francis Dykee Acland, financial secretary of the Treasury, in the House of Commons today.

His statement, which chilled his hearers, was supplemented by an appeal that farmers should drop their prejudice against the employment of female labor.

The danger point of greatly decreased production already had been reached, the speaker continued, and even as things are going it is now feared that England can not hope to maintain her production on last year's level.

"If more men are swept into the army from the farms she can only escape famine by diverting to the importation of foodstuffs ships, which are so urgently needed for the transport of munitions, he declared.

"And," Mr. Acland concluded, "we are unable to say whether there will be ships to divert that way."

During the course of the debate following Mr. Acland's speech, Rowland Edmund Prothero, Oxford University, expressed the opinion that sooner or later the Government will be compelled to put the country on rations in order to economize the food supplies. He urged the Government to grasp the serious situation forthwith.

Berlin Meat Ration

London, May 22.—The Berlin Lokal Auzeiger announces that the Berlin authorities have issued an order allowing each person a half pound of meat or fat weekly pending the issuance of meat cards in June.

Government changes of vast importance to the entire empire are impending. The Federal Council held a long session today. The result of its deliberations will be transmitted to Emperor William at once for his approval.

Part of today's session is understood to have been devoted to the economic situation. New rules regulating distribution of food supplies are to be promulgated.

The Federal Council, or Bundesrat, is the highest legislative body of Germany. Sixty-one members are appointed by the individual states.

RUSSO-AMERICAN TRADE

New Commercial Treaty Proposed By Ambassadors

Petrograd, June 10.—Mr. David R. Francis, the new American Ambassador to Russia, has given public expression to the earnest desire of the U.S. Government to open negotiations for the conclusion of a new Commercial Treaty between Russia and the United States.

The Russian Ambassador at Washington has already made a similar proposition to the Russian authorities.

In this connection attention is called to the great increase in Russian imports from the United States, which in the first three months of the year amounted to 135,000,000 roubles, or 10 per cent of the total imports into Russia. It is no wonder that the United States, which has been placed in a most advantageous position owing to the war, should wish to consolidate the present trade activity between Russia and herself and put it on a permanent basis by concluding a new Treaty of Commerce.

Shipping Bulletins

The Hongkong Admiralty Court will make an inquiry some time this month into the collision between the China Navigation s.s. Linan and the Daijin Maru, of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha. The collision occured in the China Sea, off Sai Ki, on the night of February 2, and was of such a severe nature that the Japanese steamer foundered in a couple of minutes, and 160 lives were lost. Claims by both companies have now been filed. The China Navigation company is stated to have claimed £6,000, and the Osaka Shosen Kaisha are counter-claiming £40,000 because their vessel was a total loss.

HORSE BAZAAR AUCTION

Riding ponies continue to be an expensive luxury in Shanghai. At the Horse Bazaar, yesterday, they had what really was no more than a clearing sale of medium animals, yet Dr. Pratt managed to secure Tls. 105 for a fair-looking grey, and 50 and 60 taels for several others. Any old mafoo's hack went for thirty taels or better. A number of carriages of various descriptions were also knocked down at quite good prices.

LUX

LUX and a LADY!

EVERY Lady should know Lux—know that it is a wondrous preparation for washing and preserving Silks, Cottons, Muslins, Woollens, Linens and Fabrics of every description.

Lux is the acme of laundry refinement. It cannot harm the daintiest texture—neither will it impair the soft white hands of the lady who takes a pleasure in the washing of her own dainty fabrics.

Lux is also good for washing such things as mother-of-pearl, silver ware, and plated goods, in fact, Lux is good for every form of domestic cleanliness!

WON'T SHRINK WOOLLENS.

IMPARTIAL AND PROGRESSIVE

A New Crisis in Mexico

THE Mexican situation is developing rapidly. President Carranza's demand that no more American troops shall be sent to Mexico and President Wilson's order mobilising the State Militia have been followed by the despatch of more American warships to patrol both the Pacific and Gulf coasts of Mexico. Another report is that 50,000 Mexican troops are closing in upon Gen. Pershing's little army of 15,000. While this is not likely to be true still Reuter's New York agent thought enough of the report to send it all over the world. And if it is true, it will mean that Gen. Pershing will have to face some hard fighting in order to extricate himself, as he is far into enemy country and facing, in addition to the Mexican troops, a hostile native population.

The crisis is somewhat complicated by the news that Gen. Zapata is threatening the City of Mexico. There are at least four factions in Mexico, each led by a chieftain who is independent of and opposed to the others. There is first the Carranza element, which up to date is the strongest. Villa leads another outfit and Zapata still another. Recently Gen. Felix Diaz, nephew of the late Porfirio Diaz, launched a movement in his own behalf.

Carranza's rather bellicose note to President Wilson probably was inspired more by personal politics than by patriotism, and considering the friendly support and co-operation he has had not only from the President and the United States Government as a whole, but from the A.-B.-C. countries as well, it comes with bad grace, and well merits the sharp rebuke which, according to a late telegram, it has elicited.

The President has flatly refused Carranza's request for the withdrawal of American troops from Mexico and in this, we feel sure, he will have the full support of the country.

To this offensive note from Carranza there could have been but one reply. If the Carranza forces had been able to control the situation in Mexico, there would have been no raids into the United States and the effort to run Villa to earth would not have been necessary. If Carranza has control of the situation sufficiently to effect the capture of Villa and his band why doesn't he do it? And if he isn't in control nobody is, and decisive action by the United States, however reluctantly entered upon, becomes imperative.

There is only one right course open to Carranza and that is straightforward co-operation with Gen. Pershing who is in Mexico much more upon the business of Carranza and the stricken, faction-torn people of that unfortunate state, than he is upon the business of the United States. By co-operating with Pershing he will get rid of Villa and the American troops at the same time. But if he should attempt to strike Pershing in the back there will be a different story to tell.

Repairing An Error

Marion was saying her prayers. "And please, God," she petitioned, "make Boston the capital of Vermont."

"Why, Marion," said her shocked mother, "what made you say that?"

Marion settled herself in bed. "'Cause," she answered, "I made it that way in my 'zamination paper today an' I want it to be right."

SPRING VEGETABLES AS MEDICINE

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 17—If you have weak nerves and low vitality generally, eat spring onions regularly in small quantities, and if you are unable to sleep, eat them before retiring, for the essential oil of the onion is an excellent soporific. But if you are a full-blooded person, inclined to be feverish or bilious, the onion is not for you. It will make you sneeze and perspire and be uncomfortable generally.

The onion is by no means alone among fresh vegetables in having market medicinal properties. Nearly all of them have strong acids and essential oils which produce various effects upon the body. Yet most persons eat them indiscriminately at this time of the year.

The strawberry, with its heavy content of citric and malic acid is a specific which bilious people will find beneficial, but which should be eaten sparingly by others. There is little food value in the berry. Wood and acid are its chief constituents.

Asparagus contains two active medicinal principles. Its essential substance, asparagin, stimulates the kidneys, while a green resin called mannite which it contains has a sedative effect upon the heart and will relieve palpitation or nervous excitement of that organ.

Common rhubarb is another vegetable which should be used with care, especially by gouty persons. It contains a large amount of oxalic acid which combines with alkalies to induce a gouty condition.

A naturally poisonous plant that has been made very edible by cultivation is the celery. Wild celery growing in the sunlight is a deadly plant; but the cultivated variety when buried and bleached becomes not only a dainty vegetable, but a very salutary one. It contains a great deal of sulphur, and for this reason is good for rheumatism. A famous British vegetarian writing in the London Times asserts that on a diet of celery, rheumatism is impossible. Celery also has a sedative effect upon the nerves. There are some very sensitive persons who can not eat it; but for most it is an excellent vegetable, either cooked or raw.

Probably one of the best of American food habits is the abundant eating of lettuce in the summertime. This plant contains lactucerin which has a genuine narcotic effect. In the wild lettuce this principle is so strong that a narcotic may easily be expressed from the stem of the plant; but in the cultivated variety there is just enough of it left to make the vegetable mildly soporific. It is also mildly aperient, and has a generally soothing effect. It should not, however, be eaten with vinegar as this acid will neutralize its best qualities.

Watercress is a vegetable which has never been properly appreciated in this country. There are few restaurants where you can order a watercress salad, and few homes where the plant is regularly served. Yet cress is rich in iodine, iron, phosphate and potash, and has genuine tonic value, especially in the spring. It is anti-scrofulous and is credited with being beneficial in pulmonary tuberculosis. It will clear your head in the morning and aid digestion. In England it is often eaten for breakfast with bread and butter, while in France it is popular as a salad to be eaten with meats, and is generally dipped in vinegar or oil. Wild watercress has more tonic value than the cultivated plant, and you are fortunate if you have access to a spring or brook where it grows. You should be very careful, however, that the waters from which it is taken are not polluted, for the cress acts as a sieve to catch everything floating down the stream.

A vegetable of little food value and hard to digest is the radish, which consists chiefly of wood, water and sulphur. A young radish, quickly grown, is fairly digestible and makes a good appetizer, but when the radish gets old it is no more edible than cordwood, and should be avoided. Also it should not be peeled, but eaten skin and all, and preferably with a bit of the leaf too.

Spinach is an excellent vegetable to eat in the spring because of the large amount of iron which it contains. It is mildly laxative and emollient, and is especially good for invalids and old persons. Also, the juice of spinach, as obtained by boiling it, may be drunk with excellent effect upon the complexion.

Another wholesome vegetable is the turnip, and one which may be used in more ways than most persons are aware. The root, boiled and mashed, is an excellent vegetable. Turnip-tops when young make excellent spring greens. When grown in dry, sandy soil, the turnip may be mashed and made into a bread, and it may also be baked whole, and served with butter.

The somewhat similar carrot is distinguished by its pronounced antiseptic powers, which make it especially digestible; while in some rural districts in England, mashed carrots are used as a salve for sores, and are said to heal them quickly.

What effect the tomato has upon the human system is a matter of some controversy, and should certainly be of importance in this country, where nearly everyone eats the fruit raw in season and canned during the winter. The charge has been seriously brought against the tomato that it causes cancer, but no substantial proof has been brought forward, and there is nothing in the composition of the vegetable to indicate that it could do so. It contains citric and malic acids and also oxalate of potash and has no charms for the gouty. On the other hand, it undoubtedly stimulates the liver, and the prevalence of torpid liver among civilized brain workers probably accounts for its rapid rise in popularity when it was brought from South America and introduced in Europe and the United States.

The whole tomato plant is rich in sulphur, so that when burned under fruit trees, the smoke will kill blight upon them. It is probable that the release of sulphur within the body when the tomato is digested has a decided anti-bacterial action. Altogether, there is little doubt but what the tomato is a vegetable of remarkable purifying value when taken raw. Most of its specific qualities are neutralized when it is cooked.

These instances are sufficient to show that nearly all vegetables contain specific acids and oils, and should therefore be eaten with a view to their effect. The judicious use of fresh vegetables will do a great deal to help you through minor ailments and indispositions which beset all mankind in the spring; while by the careless use of them chronic ailments or tendencies are apt to be aggravated.

The Tomb Of Osiris

Archaeologists at work excavating the ancient Egyptian city of Abydos have discovered the tomb of Osiris, the most human god of the Egyptians. This is located in a building believed to antedate the pyramids and sphinx, which has contained the finest sculpture and architecture yet discovered in Egypt.

The most important feature of this discovery is a great subterranean reservoir, or basin, upon which the barque of Osiris once floated. From inscriptions upon the walls, this water evidently possessed curative qualities and was visited by many invalids. Hydraulic engineers now studying the sheet of water which extends under most of Egypt, believe that it was once above the surface. The reservoir of Osiris substantiates this theory, although its exploration has not been completed because of the immense blocks of broken granite which still obstruct it.

The building containing it has walls of solid masonry over six feet thick. Its interior was divided into great naves by rows of monolithic pillars of such size that large numbers of them were cut up into mill stones by the conquering Romans. The city of Abydos lay thirty feet below the surface of the desert and its wonders are just beginning to become known. The temple of Osiris is believed to be its greatest building and the old reservoir is the greatest marvel of the temple.

Flights In Russia's Giant Planes

By Hamilton Fyfe

I have spent no pleasanter days and nights on the Russian front than with the airmen. From of old I have a liking and sympathy for the flying man type, a type which has become international. I have watched it develop since the earliest days of aviation, those wonderful days of the Wrights at Pau, of Hubert Latham on the cliffs by Boulogne, of the Rheims meeting, of the Grahame-White and Paulhan race to Manchester. As it began, so it has continued. Everywhere it is the same.

Russians are not the least like Englishmen or Frenchmen. Yet among Russia's flying men I could easily fancy myself at Brooklands or Buc. They do not look like Russians. They look like flying men.

To begin with, they nearly all shave clean, or wear at most a moustache in "toothbrush" style. That is rare in the Russian Army. One flying captain I do know has bushy black whiskers. It took me some time to get used to him, and even now I find it hard to believe he is so good a pilot as I know him to be. But he is a freak. All the others I have come across have cleanly cut features and pleasantly tanned cheeks. Their lips are firm and their eyes look straight at you. They have that indefinable air—should it be called "other-worldly" ?—of men who are also looking daily into the eyes of death, whose lives depend upon their skill and judgment and cool heads. They are not great talkers, but as soon as they discover a fellow enthusiast they become delightfully friendly.

* * * *

Daring, modest, simple-hearted, these Russian airmen do work of the highest value. Of this I have been assured over and over again by men in high command. At first the German airmen prided themselves on being superior at every point. They believed that their machines were better, their own skill greater, their equipment, both for reconnoitering and for fighting, vastly more complete. They have dropped that belief now.

The other day the pilot of a German Albatross was captured. He bragged about the elaborately detailed staff-maps of positions, maps showing every scrap of wire, every detail of trench-work which are prepared by the Germans from the photographs taken by their airmen. The Russian officer who was examining him (and who told me the story) said quietly, "Ah, yes, you mean maps like these," and handed him some results of Russian airmen's photography. The German looked down his nose. I have seen the prints upon which his astonished gaze rested. They are very remarkable and interesting, though not anything out of the way for Russian airmen's work. All the staffs I have been with possess much the same. "How do they compare with yours?" the Russian officer inquired politely. "Oh," stammered the braggart Prussian, "ours are . . . . not worse than that."

Afterwards he became more human —Russians can humanise even the Junker breed—and admitted his astonishment. There is a comradeship among airmen which often makes prisoners and captors good friends. I heard of several cases in which German pilots have dropped letters over the Russian lines from captive Russian flyers to mothers and sweethearts or wives. One Austrian who surrendered in a region where I happened to be made himself instantly at home in captivity. He was a song-writer as well as a soldier, and said if only he were allowed a piano he could be quite happy and busy. "I suppose there are pianos in Russia," he added doubtfully. He was an ingenuous, rather silly young man. He surrendered because a Russian machine got above his and pressed him down, down, down. They fired at one another. His gun jammed. The Russian had no more ammunition left, but he took careful aim with his empty weapon and the Austrian gave up. "A German wouldn't have done that," his captor said thoughtfully.

* * *

The Russian flying men are more especially daring than the enemy's pilots in skimming at a low height over the positions which they have to photograph. Of course a snapshot taken from 800ft. or 1,000ft. is more useful than one from 3,000ft. or 4,000ft. There are daredevil Russians who have flown at 500ft. in order to get a good result. One of these lads—he is only twenty-two—told me how in the Carpathians he took such a chance and quite plainly saw a German officer pick up a rifle and aim at him. "I knew then," he said, "exactly how a partridge feels when it is shot at—and I can tell you it isn't a nice feeling!"

The automatic cameras with which all the scouting aeroplanes are fitted must not be described, but I can tell you that they are most ingenious and do their work extremely well. Of course trenches show up very distinctly when looked down upon from the air. I flew with a Russian flight lieutenant over some positions a little way back of the firing line, and was surprised to see how vivid were the dark, zigzag lines on the earth already growing green. We seemed to be close to them, but a dead horse on the ground looked like a mouse, and our altimeter showed we were 1,500ft. up. I could easily have made a sketch-map of the position, barbed wire, communication trenches, and all. But a photograph is of infinitely greater value than a sketch, just as an eight or nine hundred pound bomb is capable of doing far more damage than the small explosives which the enemy's aeroplanes still drop, for the most part harmlessly. I was in and about Tarnopol when two determined raids were made on the town and the neighborhood. One night twenty-four bombs fell, all aimed at the railway stations. They broke some windows. That was about all. When the "Ilia Mourometz" machines go a-raiding they make a real mess.

I wish I could describe in detail these giant aeroplanes, which have cabins like those of a ship, with room for six or seven people, and which roll with the steady motion of a vessel, making the wind their friend and no enemy, as smaller craft are apt to consider it. I was all the more keenly interested in seeing these creations of the young Russian engineer Sikorsky because they are on the very lines, broadly speaking, that my old friend Colonel Cody so strongly believed in. At the last Olympia Aircraft Exhibition he showed me a big, heavy engine like the engine of a motor-car. "If I could get one like that, but with 400 instead of 200-horse power," he said, "I could begin to do things."

* * *

In the cabin of this vast flying machine, fitted with every conceivable contrivance both for the benefit of the pilot and for the discomfiture of the foe, I felt for the first time quite confident that flying will in my lifetime become a regular means of locomotion. Sitting on the "roof," looking at the immense span of the wings and the great tail, inside of which a man can walk, I said to the young flight captain who was with me, "This is the machine to fly the Atlantic." He nodded. "Yes, we've thought of that," he said, "after the war if . . . ." (he looked whimsically at marks of bullets here and there). "For the present we are busy enough, but some day——"

Certainly this is not a convenient season. These wonderful aircraft are needed now to worry the enemy with their really formidable bombs. I have seen a number of photographs of the explosions of these missiles and the damage done by them.

"Good-bye," I said to my friend the flight captain. "Don't forget there is a Daily Mail Ten Thousand Pound Prize waiting to be won."

"Right," he said, "let us say then 'au revoir.'"

The Last 'Flag Day'

By Twells Brex

"Yes, my boy," said the old man to his little grandson, "I remember the flag days very well. They were not the least of the trials of the Great War. Let me think. There was British Flag Day, French Flag Day, Russian Flag Day, Italian Flag Day, Belgian Flag Day, Servian Flag Day, Montenegrin Flag Day, Japanese Flag Day, Portuguese Flag Day, Rumanian Flag Day——"

"But Rumania wasn't one of the Allies, grandpa."

"No, but some original genius of the period, somewhere about the fifth year of the war, conceived the idea of Rumanian Flag Day to encourage her. But don't interrupt. I was trying to count the flag days. There was 'Our Day,' of course, and 'Their Day' and 'His Day' and 'Her Day,' and——"

The little boy became restive. "Did the flag days go on to the end of the war, grandpa?"

"No, my boy. I am glad to say they did not."

"What stopped them, grandpa?"

"Well, the Government had to stop them when the people began to rise against them, even though they were so terrorised and broken-spirited by the flag days. People talked a lot of the wonderful organisation of the Germans; is was nothing compared with the organisation of the flag day people. Towards the end of the flag-day movement there were more people selling flags in the streets than there were other people to buy them. Then the minority began to rebel. They sent a monster petition to the Government demanding that there should be at least one day a week prohibited as a flag day. They organised into a huge 'No Flag Days' League. But the rebellion suffered from a tactical error. Its organisers got up a flag day to sell flags to people who wanted to signify that they were sick of flag days. People were so used to having to buy flags that many of them bought them. But a great deal of feeling was aroused, and an inner revolution arose against the revolutionary body and hanged some of their leaders.

* * *

"After that fiasco the general public resorted to defensive warfare. They had heard a good deal for some years past about the 'war of attrition,' so they tried to wear down the Flag Day Party. Every day that was a flag day (and, as I have told you, there were now only six flag days a week) the general public stayed, as far as possible, at home. Men tried to rush through their week's work at their offices on 'No Flag Day'; wives went out on that day and provisioned their homes for the next six days. The schools only opened on 'No Flag Day'; railway employees and all other transport and street workers refused to work except on that day; the Stock Exchange and others only opened on that day. In fact, the whole energies of the country, so badly needed in war-time, slowed down and almost stopped, and grass would have grown in the streets were it not for the crowds of flag-sellers who still patrolled the pavements and declined to admit defeat.

"Then the Government stepped in and ordered that there must be only one flag day a week. The country's business life was immediately brisken-ed up, and millions of pale-looking people were to be seen who had not dared to stir from their homes for months. But the scenes that ensued on the weekly flag day were terrible. All the organisers packed their programs into that one day. There were not enough beautiful flag-sellers. For a long time past the flag day committees had bitterly complained that the Minister of Munitions was endeavoring to starve them out by creating a monopoly of British beauty. Desperate to fill their battalions, the leaders of the flag day committees banded together and tried to storm the nineteen hotels of the Minister of Munitions with the object of pressing his famous army of girl clerks into their services."

"Did they storm the buildings, grandpa?"

"No, my boy, they failed, mainly by a brilliant ruse of the Minister himself. He was not unprepared for the attempt, so he had a vast quantity of flags made and served out to his two hundred thousand beautiful employees, and when the storming parties invaded the offices they were confronted by all the fair munitioners and begged to 'buy a flag, please.' Their organising funds were so depleted that there was no flag day for two whole weeks, and everybody in England kept them as a holiday.

* * *

"But what really ended the flag days was not so much the restrictions upon them made by the Government and the bitter hostility of the impoverished people, as the ultimate position that so many flag days had been held that even the greatest thinkers among their organisers could not invent any new charities. It was generally recognised that the end must be coming when the flag day in aid of 'Boy Workers who have Grown too Big for their Boots' was followed by flag days in aid of 'Overworked Shipowners' and 'Coal Merchants Hit by the Daylight Saving Bill.' The end itself came—the inevitable end of exhaustion—with 'Tibet Flag Day.'

"Tibet, grandpa?"

"Yes. Tibet. You may have read, my boy, in one of your three hundred volumes of the Government's own carefully edited and censored history of the Great War, the fact that, in one of the early years of the war the Grand Lama of Tibet sent a letter to the British Government expressing his moral support of the Allies, and it was quite enough for the flag day organisers. But I am sorry to tell you that the last of the flag days ended in scenes of regrettable violence in the great cities of our country."

"People surely didn't hurt the beautiful flag ladies, grandpa?"

"No, Heaven forbid! But the mobs found out the organisers and dragged them into the streets and made them buy up all their own flags, and, I am sorry to have to tell it of my sorely tried countrymen, stuck the flag pins into them."

"Wasn't there a last flag day, grandpa, in aid of all the poor people who had been made poor by buying flags?"

"It's time you went to bed," ordered the old man irritably.

Travelettes

The People of Mukden

The people of Mukden, the Manchurian capital, are a good example of the unspoiled Chineso character; for although Japan dominates the country and many foreigners have come to it, the natives here still live almost as in the days of Confucius.

It is, in fact, their loyalty to ancient law and tradition that makes most of the difference between the Chinese and the other civilized peoples of the world. Actuated by much the same fundamental passions and instincts as the rest of humanity, he interprets them in the light of his own ancient code, often obeying laws and traditions which are as meaningless to him as to anyone else, but are hallowed by their age.

The Chinese attitude toward suicide is typical. Infinitely patient and of considerable courage, the Mongol never thinks of destroying himself to escape disgrace or suffering. Vengeance, on the other hand, held a vice by Christian nations, is with him a duty and he will often destroy his own life to injure an enemy.

A wealthy citizen of Mukden brought suit against a poor country family for the land upon which its members depended for a living. He won the case and the land. But a little later the first son of the dispossessed family killed himself at the rich man's door. His parents claimed that the rich man had been the cause of the death of their son and threatened to go to court. They were paid a large sum of hush money. A little later another son was found dead at the door of the man who wanted more land. Again a large sum of money was paid over. The debt was not considered paid, however, until a third sturdy young Mongol had cut his throat before the house of his enemy. In crowded China, arable land is very valuable, while human life is cheap. And family loyalty is a passion of unguessed depth.

Dress In Paris ◎ Tips for Early Summer

Nature, art, and actualities walk hand-in-hand just now in Paris. Nature checks our desire to put on pretty clothes by offering a day or two of sunshine which lures out some pretty frocks and then by whipping out a chastising wind which sends us all hurrying back into tweeds and furs.

At a five o'clock this week (mid-May) spring, summer, autumn, and winter were expressed in the strange variety of clothes that the women were wearing: there were women in the deepest mourning and women in half mourning; there were women in full summer attire and others in warm furs. One or two were girded in leather-bound garments, and most showed a desire to compromise by wearing cloth tailor-mades and blouses of "so fine a distraction" in lawn and lace that summer and the delights of spring breathed in every ruffle and fold.

Tailor-mades and Color

Quite the most becoming tailor-made of the hour is one in a soft mole-colored cloth, which has a short coat of the bolero type; pleats make the skirt hang well, and pleats, pressed very flat, make the back of the bolero hang to perfection. The sleeves are set in, and the shoulders have a rather square look, not accentuated. The straight line from the shoulder to the edge of the skirt, which is short, is refreshing after the funny bunched-up look of the full-basqued coat with its high waist and very full, short skirt. We might plead for the unwaisted coat generally with the short skirt, for otherwise the line, which is the secret of graceful clothes, is bound to be lost. A few good dressmakers have kept their love of line, but many seem to have lost it. Some women look like huge bunches of cloth with a faint indication of waist somewhere between the under arm and the hip. But the neat little basqued bolero does away with superfluous fullness, leaves the practical comfort of the short, full skirt intact, and ensures the graceful line of the figure.

Mole colour, grey like that of the uniform of the Italian officers, black and grey together, or dark blue and grey together are among the most distinguished looking shades for tailor mades. A black cloth costume trimmed with steel buttons and a touch of grey cloth used much as chinchilla was used in the winter looks very well, and a dark blue coat lined with grey and turned back with the same at the neck and wrists looks well too. The mole color and Italian grey seem best left as they are or else just touched with black. Any effort to look picturesque in these days is doomed to failure. To be neat, to be pleasant to look at, and to avoid extravagance in color or line is the intelligent woman's aim.

For Hot Weather

For hot weather, when the cloth tailor-made would be a burden, there is muslin—nice, crisp, cotton muslin. Some of the muslins in black and white, in grey and black, and grey and white are most suitable and becoming. They can be made up with almost no trimming and need only some suggestion of extra softness near the face. A fold of soft net in cream or white or rose pink, pale blue or apricot yellow, gives all the trimming that is necessary. In stripes, in spots, in flower designs these muslins are to be recommended. With a fichu bodice they look particularly well, and as an un-waisted princess robe, with long sleeves, and that alim, loose look which feels so comfortable, they are just as desirable. A muslin frock, except when it is in white or in some very light and delicate colour, is extremely practical. The models are generally shown in light, gay colors, but they are made up in the most sober shades.

Crepon, again, is used by economical people, and if very simply and smartly used it is successful. Embroidery or ribbon are its best trimmings, but they should be used sparingly, for the grain of the material does not agree with anything fussy. Nuns' veiling or mousseline de laine, as well as silk jersey, are also summer materials, but the shades must not be dull or commonplace. Nuns' veiling needs very pale shades and embroidery; silk jersey looks well in white or grey with a trimming of fur, and in a deep claret color it is charming. Frills in anything but silk and lingerie are not successful; they make for extravagance, as they need much care and attention.

To have clothes that look well and are not to be thought about again until they are taken off is what every woman likes. It is irritating to have to "settle your flounces" nowadays, and the occasional women in semi-crinolines look embarrased when they sit down. Tout s'arrange should apply to the fall of the skirt today, and it generally does if a woman troubles to think about her dress from all points of view—an intelligent and satisfactory form of economy.

Hats show a leaning towards the picturesque.

FUTURE OF JAPAN'S TRADE IN RAW SILK

Much Depends On The Demand In U. S.—Review Of Conditions

Now that the season for the new silk is approaching, the prospect of the raw silk trade is of interest to those engaged in the trade, says the Japan Advertiser. The Toyo Keizai Shimpo has an exhaustive article on the question. It first describes the past tendency, saying that the price of raw silk suddenly fell at the outbreak of war to below 700 yen, the lowest on record in 20 years. But subsequently the prosperity in the United States, owing to the war trade and rich agricultural crops, improved the silk business. The rise in the wool cloth also has favored the silk market, and the situation was largely improved after the appearance of the spring silk last year. But the real rise in price was not realized until September last year.

Since then, however, the price rose until it reached 1,350 yen in March this year, about double the lowest price in 1914, or the highest on record since 1907.

The Keizai Shimpo then says that just as the low price results in the decrease in supply and then the increase in demand, so the high price results in a contrary way, that is, the high price affects demand and supply. The high price has naturally increased the supply in the market, especially because of the approach of the new silk season. Thus the supply in the market has now been greatly increased. But then the sales are very slow. A congestion of stock is reported in Yokohama. The stock in the middle of March was 7,980 bales, while it increased to 19,600 bales at the end of April. It is natural that the price should have declined since the end of March till it fell at the end of April. It is remarkable that the difference in price in short invervals was so large. It rose 520 yen in five months and fell 300 yen a single month. At this price, 1,050 yen, the greater portion of the stock once congested was sold and the price has again been on the upward tendency and for a few days past it has peen maintained at about 1,100 yen.

To make any forecast of the future it is necessary to consider many factors affecting the trade. First, the world's output of cocoons has decreased in recent years. It was 27,320,000 kilograms in 1913, and 21,870,000 kilograms in 1914. No definite figure has yet been available for 1915, but in Europe alone it fell from 4,830,000 kilograms in 1914 to 3,200,000 kilograms in 1913 and there are reasons to believe that the world's output largely decreased in 1915. Along with the reduced output, there has grown a stronger demand in the United States market. Since 1912 the price has gradually but steadily increased until the outbreak of war in 1914, and this was because the demand was also on the gradual increase. The sudden fall at the outbreak of the war and the depression for a few months following was only a phenomenon due to the war which paralyzed the business the world over, and the normal condition was restored and even unprecedented prosperity ensued. Now this unprecedented prosperity cannot be explained but by the fact that the world's crop is now smaller than in past years. It cannot be denied that the chief factor that determines the future is whether the world's crop will be great or not.

Now, coming to the crop prospect for this year, it is true that Japan's crop is larger than last year by about 20 per cent. as the sericulturists have been encouraged by the prosperity since last year. The report from China says that the crop there this year will show slight increases. But in Europe and the Near East it is evident that the war has affected the rearing, either because of the want of labor or because of the farms devastated by the war. It is therefore safe to presume that the world's crop this year will be nearly the same as in 1914, that is, about 22,000,000 kilograms. Now, turning to the demand, the United States market is very strong. It is not certain whether this strong demand will continue long or not, but as long as business prospers there, owing to the war trade, it is quite safe to expect that the American demand for silk will not subside. In general, the prospects are very bright and the price will be maintained at about the present level, though of course there may be fluctuations at times, ranging between 50 or 100 yen.

Chinese Cotton Market

Messrs. Spunt and Rosenfeld write as follows in their weekly cotton market report:—

Chinese Cotton.—The market has been active during the past week and a further material advance has been established, with a more general interest on the part of the outside public, who freely enlisted on the bull side, while among the more professional element the sharp improvement in values has induced the liquidation of a fair quantity of long cotton.

New Crop.—During the week under review the progress of the growing crop has been all that could be desired, and while there has been rain in various section of the cotton belt, same has been well distributed and followed by sufficient dry weather to give planters a chance to work their crops. These combined influences are plainly visible in the cotton fields. With some exceptions here and there the fields are clean of grass, appear to be fairly well under cultivated control and the plant has a healthy look and is of a fair size. Local weather on the other hand seems rather cold, but, a fortnight of sunshiny days from now on will give the plant the necessary vigour to ensure the outturn of a good and healthy crop.

In viewing the situation from all sides, we do not think that the present advance has been excessive, and while any calculations involving the future course of prices is dependent on developments of the new crop, we believe that as the outlook presents itself at present as to the future requirements both here and in Japan, the chances for successful operation will still lie on the Bull side, so that if any temporary weakness should develop in the speculative markets we can only advise our friends to take advantage of such moments to buy.

Tone of the market is firm.

TURK'S WIDE FRONT

Effect of Russian and British Campaigns Is Felt

By H. Hamilton Fyfe

Petrograd, May 26.—The unexpectedly rapid development of the Russian advance in the direction of Mosul (on the Tigris, 188 miles north-north-west of Baghdad) has caused the Turks and their German masters to make hasty changes in the disposition of their forces. The first idea apparently was to form a fortified line of defence from Diarbekir to Baghdad, which, considering the numbers at their disposal, was a very difficult task. Now, as the evacuation of the south bank of the Tigris round Kut shows, they are shortening their front in the Baghdad region.

While they remain on the defensive before Kut they are credited with the intention of trying to relieve the pressure against them by an advance towards Erzeroum and Trebizond (in Armenia). But seeing that they are now compelled by the activity of General Baratoff's cavalry over so wide an area to spread their forces over the whole distance from the Black Sea to the Persian Gulf their chances of striking a vigorous blow in any direction are weaker than they were a few weeks ago.

Threatened at so many points, they cannot shift troops with security from any one point to another, and roadless country through which reinforcements are passing makes progress necessarily slow. So far their efforts to advance have subsided into defensive operations.

The campaign along the whole front in Armia and Mesopotamia is watched very closely here, with the growing hope of the gradual establishment of conditions which will ensure success.

JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE

On May 27, only four days before the Jutland battle, the Daily Mail printed the following from Copenhagen:

Aftenposten states that at 5 a.m. today twelve German cruisers passed Jaederen (south of Stavanger) outside Norwegian waters. The squadron seems to have stopped, in fear of an attack by British submarines.

Half an hour later two aeroplanes arrived and the squadron proceeded northwards.

SELECT VON WALDOW GERMAN FOOD DICTATOR

Energetic Ober-President Of Pomerania Is Likely To Tackle Problem

HE USES STRONG METHODS

Report German Soldiers On Border Asking Food Of the Swiss

Berlin, May 17.—The intimation is made, which, according to well-informed leaders, amounts to practical certainty, that Finance Minister Helfferich will be the new Minister of the Interior and Vice Chancellor, and that a really strong man has been found for the post of "Food Dictator" in the person of the Ober-President of the Province of Pomerania, von Waldow. It is thought that the two will make a fine combination to tackle the vital food problem.

Von Waldow is known as a man of great energy. He was a prominent political figure in the decade preceding the war, and his vigorous methods, particularly as Ober-President of Posen, in the assimilation of the Polish elements augurs well for his coming work in attacking the complicated food problems and carrying through the needed reforms with an iron hand.

There is general agreement that von Waldow meets the necessary requirements for a food dictator, which the Vossische Zeitung summarizes as "a man with a hard fist and a firm will, equipped with absolute power, who in execution of his aims will not be hindered by minor considerations or the conflicts of speech interests."

In politics von Waldow is an ultra-conservative.

It is thought probable that Dr. Helfferich will also have a hand in curing Germany's food troubles, for as the Chancellor's closest adviser and Acting Chancellor in the latter's absence he will have ample opportunity for employing his organizing ability in solving the problems of subsistence.

Food to Gerard by Pouch

London, May 17.—From unofficial sources The New York Times correspondent learns that as a result of personal communications between members of the staffs of the American Embassies in Berlin and London parcels which have nothing diplomatic about them are being sent from the British to the German capital. Diplomatic pouches in the days before the war occasionally contained articles upon which toll might have been exacted by frontier customs officials. The story goes that ever since the war began Ambassador Gerard has been indebted to Ambassador Page for various haberdashery luxuries to be found in Bond Street and unobtainable in Berlin.

Now, according to The New York Times correspondent, unofficial information, matters are much more serious and members of the American Embassy in Berlin look to members of the American Embassy in London for a supply of certain things necessary to the satisfaction of the inner man, which it is impossible to get in Berlin for love or money. War bread, Mr. Gerard and his colleagues have in more or less plentiful supply, and meat, fish, and vegetables are obtainable, together with butter, milk, and so forth. There are, however, certain comestibles which are lacking in Berlin and with which members of the London Embassy staff are assiduously seeking to supply their less fortunate colleagues.

According to The New Times correspondent's information the Berlin Embassy's request for these undiplomatic pouches is becoming regularly more insistent.

German Soldiers Beg Food

Geneva, May 17, (via Paris.)—German soldiers along the Swiss-Alsatian frontier, chiefly elderly men of the Landsturm, have begun to ask food from the Swiss soldiers. The Germans say they have not eaten meat for weeks.

Five German soldiers in uniform, although fired upon, escaped across the Swiss frontier at Roderadorf, near Basle, yesterday. They were interned at Berne.

The Neue Stuttgarter Zeitung says the food situation in Rhine towns is becoming intolerable. The newspaper advised the Government to take drastic measures to change the mode of living of the people. It suggests that cooking in private families be prohibited and that the population be ordered to eat in common at restaurants, where meat would be served once daily, at noon, and only vegetables in the evening.

Eighteen German cattle dealers arrived in Basle yesterday, hoping to buy cattle, which are becoming scarce.

THE TWO BANKS

He is a wise man who has a bank account, but he is an unwise man who makes that an excuse for not taking life assurance. The two propositions are entirely different. The bank account only stands for the cash actually deposited, plus whatever interest may accrue on it, whereas the life assurance policy does all that the bank does in the way of interest, by way of added profits, and this besides: It credits immediately to the estate, in the event of death, the full face of the policy, be it for $1,000 or $100,000.

When you take out a life assurance policy you make the biggest bank deposit you ever made in your life at one time.

PRESBYTERIANS HOPE TO AVOID A CONTEST

Election of Dr. John A. Marquis Moderator Indicates Victory for Peace Party

HAS NEW YORK'S SUPPORT

Dr. McEwan, Urged as a Man Who Could Resist 'Poison Of Unbelief', Beaten

Atlantic City, N. J., May 18.—The election this afternoon of the Rev. Dr. John A. Marquis, President of Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, as Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which opened here today for its one hundred and twenty-eighth meeting, indicated that the party in the assembly seeking to prevent an open split between the New York Presbytery and the Presbyteries of the Middle West and South on questions of doctrine and the relation to the Church of Union Theological Seminary would prevail.

Dr. Marquis is generally recognised as "sound" in doctrine and he admits that he is an "old line conservative," but the feeling among many of the delegates to the assembly is that he is of a fair and tolerant disposition and will be an influence for harmony in the denomination. The balloting was secret, but it is not disputed that Dr. Marquis had the support of the majority of the New York commissioners.

The difference between the two bodies of thought in the Church may yet be fought out on the convention floor, for the frankness with which the Rev. Dr. William L. McEwan of Pittsburgh was urged for the office of Moderator as a man who could resist "the poison of unbelief in the Church" and the number of votes he received made it evident that those who consider the New York Presbytery and Union Seminary heretical are present in the assembly in force, but at the same time the overwhelming victory of Dr. Marquis and the prevalent belief among many of the commissioners, or delegates, that the very platform upon which Dr. McEwan was run turned from him votes that he would otherwise have received, cause most observers to predict a harmonious meeting for the current General Assembly.

First Ballot Fails to Elect

There were two ballots in the election. The first one resulted in 430 votes for Dr. Marquis, 274 for Dr. McEwan, and 159 for the Rev. Dr. George L. Robinson of McCormick Seminary, Chicago. As 432 votes were necessary for election, the retiring Moderator, the Rev. Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, called for a second ballot; but before this was taken Dr. Robinson's name was withdrawn in favor of Dr. Marquis. The final vote was. Dr. Marquis, 616; Dr. McEwan, 237.

Dr. Marquis was nominated by the Rev. Dr. Frank C. McKean of Des Moines, Iowa, who introduced him as "a great leader" who could wisely and fairly steer the Church through difficulties, and he then admitted that his candidate was a favorite son.

"Dr. Marquis has claims as a man," said Dr. McKean, "but he also has the right of territory. The great Middle West is asking for recognition today. It's time for the Presbyterian Church to begin to be fair. New York, Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, and Chicago have had their turn in power and it's Iowa's turn now."

Dr. Robinson was nominated next, and then Dr. McEwan was placed in nomination by the Rev. Dr. Hugh K. Walker of Long Beach. Cal., who, answering the argument advanced for Dr. Marquis, said that the assembly should rise above geographical considerations and elect the man who filled all conditions." Dr. Walker did not allude directly to the imminent heresy difficulty, but emphasized the fact that Dr. McEwan was a man whose theological convictions were "positive and well known."

McEwan's Nomination Seconded

The Rev. Dr. John Y. Ewart of Colorado Spring, Col., seconded the nomination. He asserted that Dr. McEwan was the candidate of orthodoxy against heterodoxy. Although Dr. Ewart's speech seemed to be well received by the Commissioners from the Cincinnati Presbytery, which has asked for the expulsion of the New York Presbytery from the Church, and by those who want to recover large bequests from Union Seminary on the grounds that, because of its alleged heretical teachings, the seminary is misappropriating money intended for orthodox instruction, the majority of the convention did not receive Dr. Ewart at all cordially. Laughter greeted the remark, "The ship of our beloved Church is in danger of being torpedoed." The speaker continued:

"Our Church is facing a great crisis. There are those who are injecting the poison of unbelief into the Presbyterian body. Dr. McEwan stands solidly upon the fundamentals of the Presbyterian faith. He believes in the Bible and the faith founded upon it."

An imperative voice interrupted at this point, shouting "Who does not?"

The question was applauded, but Dr. Ewart continued in the same strain. In a few minutes Commissioners began stamping their feet, and others shouted "Sit down." For a while the speaker could scarcely be heard. He finished his plea, however, and was applauded when he finished.

Dr. Marquis would not state his position on the doctrinal questions involved.

"I want to find out the facts in the case," he said in an interview. "I don't know the facts yet. I will say that I am descended through 300 years of pure Presbyterian blood and am a conservative."

While balloting was going on, Dr. Marquis was seen in the company of a number of the New York commissioners who, evidently, were among his strong supporters. Several of the New York men admitted that they wanted him because of his judicial ability and fairness of mind.

Dr. Marquis was born in Pennsylvania in 1861, and received his education at Washington and Lee University, and at Wesleyan Theological Seminary. He was pastor of churches in Greensburgh, Penn.; Redlands, Cal., and other places before 1909, when he went to Coe College.

In making his speech of acceptance Dr. Marquis asked the assembly for its "support and forebearance in whatever problems might arise."

In opening the convention this morning, the Rev. Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, the retiring Moderator, said that the world war was "a challenge to the Church," and later in his address he urged harmony to thwart "the commissions and boards which were disturbing the Church.

The assembly will meet daily in the Music Hall on the Steel Pier through Friday, May 26.

JAPAN'S POPULATION

A Tokio despatch to the Eastern News Agency (Japanese) says that, according to a report of the Bureau of Statistics in the Japanese Cabinet, the population of the Empire of Japan at the end of the 2nd year of Taishi (1914) was as follows:—

The Islands of Japan	53,356,295
Chosen (Korea)	15,160,923
Taiwan (Formosa)	3,265,166
Kabafuto (Saghalien)	1,691
Total	71,784,075

Thus it makes the total over 71,000,000 and the ratio of the increase of the population is 15 persons per 1,000 every year, which is the highest on record in the world. The ratio of the increase of men against women is 102 males to 100 females.

Mr. Daniels Wants Big California Oil Fields For Navy

Appeals To President To Save Reserved Lands for Naval Necessities

Washington, D. C., May 20.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels has appealed to the President to use his personal influence to save the reserves set aside in the California oil fields for the use of the Navy. The preservation of these reserves for the development of a fuel supply for the Navy is, says Secretary Daniels, a vital step in the progress towards national defense.

A portion of these reserved oil lands has been staked as private claims and a bill is now before congress legalizing these claims and alienating them from the public.

Secretary Daniels declares if this bill becomes law the Navy loses the valuable section of the reserve affected by the claims, which had been withdrawn from entry by executive order of President Taft, it will be necessary for the Navy to abandon all thought of going upon an oil fuel basis and to return to coal as the only available fuel.

In the Courts

Gen. Chen's Murder

The hearing of the six prisoners charged with complicity in the murder of Chen Chi-mei was continued yesterday in the French Mixed Court. Some interesting evidence was given concerning the "Cie Hong Fong," a coal concern which the French police say was a rendezvous and blind for the secret service men of Yuan Shih-k'ai. Some of the men arrested were connected with this concern, a fact which the police say shows who was behind the murder. It was alleged that this coal company had very little coal and very little capital, but that it had a great deal of stock.

Tsa Ah-lo, a young hopeful employed by the company, was placed on the stand.

"My business duties," said he, "were to meet the shareholders at the office and tell them about the coal mine."

"What did they pay you?" asked the magistrate.

"I was paid $60 a month," said the witness, "but I didn't get it. I worked there for four months and didn't receive a cash."

One of the five prisoners alleged to have fired the shots that killed Chen was another of the clerks in this office.

The first witness yesterday was the cook at No. 14 Rue Chapsal where the assassination was committed. He said that on the afternoon of May 18 he saw two carriages and a motor car draw up near his master's house but did not think anything about the visitors until he heard shots in a room nearby. Three Chinese ran through his kitchen to make their escape. He caught one of the men and when he pulled away, the man shot at the cook. Like others in the house, the cook was prepared for this emergency. He drew a revolver and fired back, the shot striking the man in the hand.

The chauffeur who drove the car said that a man came to the garage at No. 57 Hupeh Road and hired the car. He drove some of the party to the entrance of the alleyway on the Rue Chapsal and waited outside. They arrived about 3 o'clock. The time must have been carefully arranged because at 5 the fare told the chauffeur to open all the doors of the car. A little later he heard shots and the man came running down the street, jumped into the machine and told him to drive off at top speed. The car started down the Avenue Joffre but something went wrong and it came to a stop. The man escaped in a ricsha. The chauffeur reported to the police, was arrested on suspicion but was later released.

The chauffeur said that he saw the two carriages that carried other members of the assassination party. They each had two mafoos. He declared that he could identify these mafoos.

M. de la Prade, the assessor and Magistrate Nieh heard the case. The hearing was adjourned to next Wednesday afternoon.
